STAT

Thank you for your letter of 9 May relative to your application for employment with this Agency.

I have been informed that you were contacted by phone last October and told that we had nothing suitable for you at that time. I also understand that several later efforts were made to contact you personally without success. I regret, however, that apparently no official letter relative to the status of your case has been dispatched.

There has been no change in our vacancy situation since the phone conversation with you in October, and we do not currently have a suitable vacancy for which you could be considered. We shall be glad, however, to contact you if something suitable should occur in the future, and with that in mind are retaining your name on our active list of applicants for positions here.

Again I regret that you were not sent an official letter stating our situation with respect to your case, and appreciate your bringing the matter to my personal attention.

Sincerely,

Signer - disp via ER 15 May 50.
